MASS ARAB INVASION DENIED BY UN CHIEF

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold said today he found no evidence of any mass entry of United Arab Republic forces into Lebanon during his recent trip to the strife-torn country.

Meanwhile it was reported from Beirut that rebels had launched a counter-attack at the main east-west highway from Beirut to Damascus and fought for control of another road supplying government forces fighting southeast of Beirut.

Seafarers Voting On Work Return

Some 350 members of the Seafarers' International Union cast ballots today in a crucial secret vote to decide if CPR ferries will resume service immediately.

Voting was conducted in Vancouver, Victoria and Nanaimo. Results were not expected to be known until late today.

Norman Cunningham, SIU port agent in Vancouver, said the members would vote on a recommendation made Tuesday by federal mediator Eric Taylor.

Taylor's two-point proposal recommended: Impediment and voluntary resumption of the ferry service by the company, SIU and two officers' unions involved in the dispute; arbitration of the original pre-conciliation positions of both sides by a federal appointee to be completed by Aug. 15.

The Marine Engineers Association and the Canadian Merchant Service Guild have wired federal Labor Minister Michael Starr that they accept the recommendation. The CPR also has agreed.

But on the SIU "front" our committee turned down the recommendation and we're going to the membership to see if they will back up the committee," Mr. Cunningham said.

SIU acceptance could mean resumption of the 10-ship Princess fleet's operations by Saturday, eight weeks after the start of the strike.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson disclosed today that he has been receiving anonymous letters about the Sommers bribery-conspiracy trial which he is conducting.

The B.C. Supreme Court Justice made his disclosure as he addressed the jury and excused them until Wednesday while defence argument continues for dismissal of some or all of the charges against former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers, three other individuals and four companies.

Mr. Justice Wilson said he hopes the jurors will not lose faith in the process of which you are most important," and then added:

"I know you are not like those fanatical people who have been writing me anonymous letters and have done so right through this trial, accusing me of some kind of attempt to free those accused."

IN 34TH DAY

The judge did not elaborate on his remarks.

The disclosure came as the trial went into its 34th day with veteran counsel Alfred Bull arguing for dismissal of all charges against his clients, Charles D. Schultz and the big timber engineering company of the same name.

Last week the justice ruled that the "limitation" section of the old criminal code of Canada — excluding prosecution for a bribery charge more than two years old — did not apply in the trial involving former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers, three other executives and four companies.

Since then, the SIU has scaled down its demands to 25 per cent, 19 per cent this year and 6 per cent in 1959. The company has maintained its 8 per cent offer.

The SIU claims present average wage of seamen is $230 a month. The company claims it is higher.

Both officers' unions have sought wage increases of 19 per cent over two years.

Solution of the CPR ferry dispute probably would be followed by final settlement of a similar dispute between the unions and Black Ball Ferries Ltd., now being operated by the provincial government under emergency Civil Defence Act powers to avert a tie-up.

Eye Doctors Suspended 3 Months

Appeal Planned In Kickback Case

An undisclosed number of Vancouver eye specialists will have their licences suspended for three months, the council of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons announced today.

An appeal to the courts will be launched by the doctors before their suspensions go into effect Aug. 6.

The suspensions arise from an income tax appeal board ruling last September that Vancouver and Victoria doctors would have to pay tax on an estimated $390,000 received in "kickbacks" from optical firms during the last decade.

Not all the doctors are living now.

Victoria doctors H. G. Grieve and J. A. Stewart, involved in the income tax appeal, are not affected by the suspensions.

The medical society's announcement said:

"After complete investigation and consideration by the council of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of B.C., a number of ophthalmologists (eye-specialists) in Vancouver will have their licence to practise suspended for a period of three months, this period to begin in six weeks time from June 25."

REASON UNDISCLOSED

The cryptic statement did not disclose grounds for the suspensions or how many doctors were involved. However, it is understood that about 12 doctors will be suspended.

Names of the doctors involved in the income tax appeal and the assessed incomes from the deal were:

Victoria: Dr. Grieve, $10,000; Dr. Stewart, $12,000;

Vancouver — A. R. Anthony, $34,754; C. E. Davies, $35,904;

J. A. McLean, $29,172; J. A. Smith estate, $28,723; R. G. Lawrence, $27,377; H. S. B. Galbraith, $24,235; L. H. Webster, $17,900; E. F. Raynor, $16,157;

G. S. Elliott, $13,464; L. H. Lee, $13,464; G. H. Francis, $9,088; O. E. Kirby, $8,976; Josephine and Kirby, $8,976; W. E. Ainley, $7,180; E. E. Day, $7,180 and R. S. Grimmett estate, $4,488.

Kamloops — F. P. McNamee, $19,000.

Vancouver lawyer J. L. Lawrence, representing some of the unidentified doctors, said he has begun proceedings to bring an appeal before the B.C. Supreme Court as allowed under the Medical Act.

He declined to give any other information.

College president Dr. Ronald Scott-Moncrieff, of Victoria, said through his secretary that he

Goldfine Admits Gift To 'Poor Workers'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bernard Goldfine acknowledged today making what he called Christmas present payments to some poor workers, he said.

Robert W. Lishman, counsel to the investigating committee, said the cheques totalling $750,000 may have gone to federal employees "who may have been too bashful to get them cashed."

The Boston industrialist refused to give House investigators his records of $750,000 worth of cheques drawn on funds of his enterprises but never cashed.

Goldfine contended the matter was not relevant to the committee's investigation of his relations with Sherman Adams, chief aide to President Eisenhower, and the treatment of Goldfine businesses by federal regulatory agencies.

Goldfine said his Christmas present payments to White on his hotel bed. He listens to house and congressional opponents were of the $25 variety.

staff members, William Safire and George Britt, to the task of getting information from Goldfine and his battery of lawyers and relaying it to reporters.

McCrary's television background crops out when he refers to Goldfine's prepared texts as "the scripts."

NO FEE

McCrary says he is here serving without fee or compensation for expenses, and purely because of his long standing friendship with Robb. It might also be noted, however, that McCrary has been one of Sherman Adams' most ardent supporters and admirers since the 1952 presidential campaign which first carried Dwight D. Eisenhower to political success.

A prime example of McCrary at work was the 25-page document Goldfine read to the subcommittee Wednesday at his opening testimony. Here is the unvarnished story of how the document came into existence.

When it was determined Goldfine would have to appear before the House members, Lawrence Cohen of Boston, family attorney for the Goldfines, began to put together the essential facts. Samuel Sears, also of Boston and an attorney for Goldfine's companies, joined in the preparation.

EXPECT COACHING

Robb joined the advance guard in work on the testimony with his specialist's eye on Washington angles. When the Goldfines came to Washington last Sunday they were joined by other attorneys, including former Judge Sol Gelb of New York who was on the staff of Thomas E. Dewey when Dewey was New York district attorney. Gelb is a specialist in cross-examination and coached Goldfine on what to expect.

On Tuesday night the testimony was virtually complete. Robb spent long hours talking with Goldfine. Armed with technical and financial data from Cohen, Sears and James Kelleher, another Boston attorney, Robb then sat down and put on paper Goldfine's words and style of phrasing.

Late Tuesday night, not many hours before Goldfine made his debut before the committee, the textile manufacturer read the final draft aloud. McCrary listened, watched and made notes, taking care to remember each time Goldfine pounded his fist on a bedside table for emphasis.

Then a final-final or "reading" copy for Goldfine was prepared and here McCrary went to work. He followed his television training and "scored" the testimony, underlining in heavy red pencil each point—a word or a phrase—where Goldfine had pounded for emphasis.

He explained to Goldfine the red underlines meant those words were to be "punched" or accented.

McCrary also noted that after reading for a few minutes Goldfine's voice began to crack. In red pencil he wrote into the script at appropriate points, "glass of water."

One line McCrary recognized as a laugh producer, but thought Goldfine should remain serious. Tex wrote between the lines, "Don't laugh."

When the script was "scored" it was well after midnight and Goldfine was asleep.

Robb confided to McCrary his firm belief Goldfine's massive inner strength would see him through the tribulations of the congressional inquiry. In fact he thought Goldfine would be great.

McCrary smiled, reached for the script and fished out his crayon. Across the top of the first sheet McCrary wrote in firm red letters, "You will be great."

had nothing to say regarding the decision.

The announcement was the first statement by the medical association since its special investigation into the situation was completed Meay 13.

The closed inquiry, headed by Vancouver Judge R. A. Sargent, was set up last October after an income tax appeal board ruled that the doctors would have to pay tax on the kickback assessments.

CONSPIRACY CLAIMED

The doctors appealed the assessments on the grounds that the money was non-taxable capital gain on shares in Prescription Optical Co. Ltd.

The income tax department claimed there was a conspiracy between the doctors and Standard Optical Co., Imperial Optical Co. Ltd., Oculist Prescription Co. Ltd. and H. A. Boyner of Vancouver.

The government claimed the conspiracy was "in fraud of the government to arrange a purported sale of shares in the capital stock of Oculist Prescription Co. to Standard Optical Co. to represent the said money as capital receipts whereas the money received by the appellants as a result of the said conspiracy was income."

INGENIUS SCHEME

Cecil L. Snyder, assistant appeal board chairman, ruled against the doctors and said: "What transpired was no more than an ingeniously contrived scheme to pay extra sums of money for a period of 10 years to the co-operating doctors, and thus to assure a continuing rich volume of business to the Toronto optical organization."

Mr. Snyder said the sale price was to be paid to the doctors over 10 years. Although each doctor was credited with one share, none knew how much the others were receiving in cash.

"It was made clear in evidence," said the board's judgment, "and it is abundantly plain that each of the doctors was paid in accordance with the productivity of his professional practice."

'Glorying in Gloom,'
Says Finance Minister

(From Times News Services).

OTTAWA—Finance Minister Fleming regards opposition criticisms of his 1958-59 budget as "a wail unworthy of Canadians."

Referring specifically to the Liberals, he said in the House Wednesday the opposition is "glorying in gloom" and that Canada's credit would not be helped by irresponsible statements.

The opposition's attempts to destroy confidence in Canada, if successful, might cause a deficit larger than his forecast of $648,000,000.

Mr. Fleming spoke just before the Progressive Conservative majority buried a Liberal

Lack of Publicity Hurts Senate

Senator Leon M. Gouin says lack of publicity is the main reason why the Senate is so often criticized as a "practically useless" body.

The Quebec Liberal senator made the statement Wednesday shortly before the Upper House passed the traditional government motion approving the Throne Speech read at the opening of Parliament. The Commons gave its approval May 29.

Senator Gouin said the upper chamber plays an important role in the Canadian legislative process in giving a second sober look at government legislation.

PM Reveals Plans to Aid Power Project

Prime Minister Diefenbaker outlined Wednesday details of a draft agreement by which the federal government would confine its assistance for the South Saskatchewan River power-irrigation project largely to the earthen dam itself.

He cited no exact figures but it appeared that federal aid for the project would probably exceed $70,000,000, leaving the province to handle the rest of the project whose total estimated cost for dam, power and irrigation components has been estimated at about $185,000,000.

The draft agreement has been sent to Saskatchewan, the prime minister told the House, and he expressed hope it would be signed at the earliest possible date, enabling a start on the project "within the next few weeks."

The draft made no mention of Saskatchewan's request for a $25,000,000 loan to help finance the power phase of the project at Outlook, Sask., 60 miles southwest of Saskatoon.

In a statement from Regina, Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan said Wednesday he is "deeply disappointed" about the federal rejection of the loan application.

Senator Cyrille Vaillancourt, Quebec Liberal, said Wednesday that boxing and wrestling bouts, "whether they are faked or not," should be banned from television.

Senator Vaillancourt said the Belgian Senate has unanimously approved a bill banning such television programs and Canada should do likewise.

He also told the Senate program which dealt with murder, gangsters, firearms and crime should not be televised for children to see.

WESTERN HEMLOCK GOING NORTH

'Home-Made' Cruiser Success In B.C. Forest Service Trials

By MONTE ROBERTS

The marine branch of the B.C. Forest Service had justifiable reason for pride Wednesday when the new patrol boat Western Hemlock concluded trials in Juan de Fuca Strait.

The 40-foot, clinker-built cruiser is the creation of the Forest Service, from basic design to final dab of paint on the gleaming upper works.

Western Hemlock was designed to range over a wide area where sea provides the only means of transportation. She will be based at Prince Rupert, and her crew of three will operate north as far as the Queen Charlottes.

The cruiser's duties will include timber cruising, inspection of logging operations, and emergency fire fighting.

SPEED ESSENTIAL

Speed was essential if she was to prove adequate for the job, and speed she has, due largely to ingenious design and use of materials.

Cast aluminum has been used extensively to keep weight down—even the deck bollards are of aluminum. The hull is designed so the craft gets up on the step at cruising speed, cutting down resistance to water.

Thus the twin GM diesels produce 470 horsepower at 2,300 revolutions. At under 2,000 revs, Western Hemlock steps along at about 18 knots, and at 2,300 she will produce 22 knots or better.

SHALLOW WATERS

Western Hemlock is 11 feet in beam, but only of six-foot moulded depth, enabling her to work well in shallow waters.

She carries fuel for 20 hours at cruising speed—about 400 nautical miles.

BY-ELECTION

Eleventh-Hour Entry Boosts Saanich Field

Leslie H. Passmore, a former reeve and councillor of Saanich, entered the contest for a seat on council just before nominations closed at noon Wednesday.

A by-election will be held July 12 to elect a new reeve and a new council member.

Councillor George Chaterton, who resigned his seat to seek the reeveship, also filed papers at Saanich municipal hall a short time before nominations closed.

Two others contesting the reeveship with Councillor Chaterton are Cunningham H. S. MacMillan, 971 Lodge and Archibald H. Abbott, 174 Gow-ard.

Seeking the council vacancy are six candidates—Mr. Passmore of 2873 Austin; Reginald A. Clarke, 1551 Kempton Road; Gregory C. Cook, 190 Labournum; Chester Dowman, 4021 Shelbourne; Lionel Speller, 3416 Bethune; and David C. Wright, 5367 Ruston.

The by-election follows the resignation of Reeve Arthur Ash.

All candidates will address an election forum to be held in the Lake Hill Women's Institute Hall July 10 at 8:30 p.m.

"This is a 'Do It Yourself era,'" C. W. Wilkinson, president of the Saanich Voters' Association, said today. "And the most important 'Do It Yourself project is voting in elections."

He said if citizens and ratepayers ignored their right to vote they could lose that right.

Kiwanis Name Head

CHICAGO (AP)—Kenneth B. Loheed, Toronto shoe merchant, won election Wednesday as president of Kiwanis International. Loheed, a 32-year veteran of Kiwanis and formerly vice-president, was unopposed for the top office at the 43rd annual convention.

With the announcement that

Jack O'Rourke of Chatham, Ont., had won, a crowd of milling, shouting delegates surrounded the successful candidate while the chairman cheerfully pounded with his gavel.

Order was restored briefly to go through the formality of electing eight vice-presidents.

Convention committee chairman, Victoria's Stickney Harris, gained applause when he said that he hoped delegates had enjoyed the convention and, in reference to the CPR ferry strike, "perhaps it won't be so difficult to get it here next time."

National vice-presidents elected by acclamation were:

Charles Blais, Quebec City;

Jean Louis Cousineau, St. Bruno, Que.; Donald G. LeBlanc, Halifax, N.S.; William A. Pike, Stratford, Ont.; Clayton Joseph Reeves, Lloydminster, Alta.; Douglas A. Wight, Calgary, Alta.; Neil Forsyth, Hamilton.

Western Hemlock is 11 feet in beam, but only of six-foot moulded depth, enabling her to work well in shallow waters.

She carries fuel for 20 hours at cruising speed—about 400 nautical miles.

Western Hemlock was designed to range over a wide area where sea provides the only means of transportation. She will be based at Prince Rupert, and her crew of three will operate north as far as the Queen Charlottes.

The cruiser's duties will include timber cruising, inspection of logging operations, and emergency fire fighting.

SPEED ESSENTIAL

Speed was essential if she was to prove adequate for the job, and speed she has, due largely to ingenious design and use of materials.

Cast aluminum has been used extensively to keep weight down—even the deck bollards are of aluminum. The hull is designed so the craft gets up on the step at cruising speed, cutting down resistance to water.

Thus the twin GM diesels produce 470 horsepower at 2,300 revolutions. At under 2,000 revs, Western Hemlock steps along at about 18 knots, and at 2,300 she will produce 22 knots or better.

A Doubtful Strike

VOTING SECRETLY, UNDER government supervision, some 33 per cent of the coast lumber workers opposed a strike. The majority, of course, has an undoubted legal right to go ahead with the proposed strike but it is unlikely to succeed when the union is so divided within itself. A successful strike in a great industry, involving thousands of workers, requires the overwhelming support of the union members. Such support is lacking in the present dispute which threatens to disrupt the economy of British Columbia.

It remains to be seen whether the union will force a strike after a verdict so lukewarm and indecisive. Certainly the recent vote will serve only to encourage management in its resistance to a wage increase during a period of falling profits. If there is a strike it is likely to be a long one, with huge losses not only to industrialists and lumber workers but to the whole province.

Meanwhile the union vote cast a vivid new light on the present operations of our labor laws.

When the union called a private strike vote, to test the sentiment of the members, many of them did not bother to vote. Of those who voted a vast majority favored a strike. The pressure to give the union leaders a blank cheque and a powerful weapon in negotiating with management was irresistible.

But when the chips were down and the final vote was held, with private ballots, under government supervision, the result was entirely different. When virtually all union members vote, and when they can vote secretly, as in a political election, about one-third of their total number refuses to go along with the leaders and decides that a strike would be unwise under present conditions.

The virtue of the secret ballot, protected by a government supervisor, was never more clearly demonstrated.

This remarkable incident raises an important question: If the Legislature is determined to enforce a secret vote on any strike why should it authorize a preliminary, public vote where the actual opinion of the members is not likely to be revealed, as it was not revealed in the recent lumber union vote?

Labor unions are absolutely entitled to strike under the law and, except in a few vital industries essential to the community, that right is not very often questioned. The Legislature has said, however, in its statutes, that a strike must not be undertaken without a vote assuring rule by the majority and also the protection of the secret ballot.

That being so, and the supervised vote established by law, what is the purpose of a preliminary strike vote except to foment strikes, and discourage workers who are opposed to them?

A second question arose in the recent lumber vote, as it has arisen frequently before now.

Under the existing law a union can decide to strike and need not strike for three months. In the meantime, the threat of a strike can be used as a bargaining weapon against management, which never knows if or when its industry will be paralyzed.

Business has protested, rightly we believe, against this procedure because it can and often does produce weeks of harassment and uncertainty.

The Legislature would be wise to provide by law that, after taking a strike vote, a union must strike within, say, a week, or call off the strike altogether. This provision would not deprive labor of any essential right but it would eliminate one very serious abuse.

Contributing to Education

NEXT MONDAY THE VICTORIA College summer session will open for seven weeks' courses which have become an important factor in British Columbia's educational program.

Mainly the classes are designed to give teachers the opportunity to improve their professional standing. All credit courses—and they have been doubled this year to 30—can be applied to university degrees in education and arts and science.

In addition to these, seven non-credit courses have been arranged to offer intellectual stimulation and entertainment to the local community. The latter range through Vic-

New And Unenviable Record

CANADIANS HAVE SET A NEW and unenviable record of traffic fatalities and drownings over the four day holiday period ending Tuesday at midnight.

In all, 110 lost their lives in accidents, about half of them on the highway. The death of a woman in Victoria at an early hour Saturday morning is included in that listing, as is that of a boy drowned at Campbell River.

On the open highway, however, motorists fared well on Vancouver Island. There was none of the grinding crashes which result in fatalities, in spite of the fact that traffic was heavy.

This is relatively reassuring. The downtown accident cannot properly be charged against speed on the highway. Islanders have escaped by a combination of good luck and reasonably careful driving.

It must be obvious, however, that careful operation of a car is not a matter solely of concern on a prolonged holiday weekend. The dangers of the highway exist every day and all year.

The lesson of the weekend on the Island is simple: extra care gets you there. That is a slogan to be kept in mind by all drivers at all times.

One Man, Two Faces

THERE ARE VARIOUS REASONS why a collection of Mr. Nikita Khrushchev's writings might be made. They could furnish facts of historical interest for future generations, they could add in some instances to the humorous literature of the world, to its store of rhetoric, its library of psychological analyses, and so on. But a further collection of Khrushchevisms might well be made to add to mankind's library of hypocrisy.

Perhaps a more diplomatic word would be satire. But it must be true that in the field of diplomacy, where the poker face traditionally hides the tongue in cheek, few practitioners have outdone the Moscow leader in the art of lavishing sincerity on a fabrication.

In his recent letter to President Eisenhower, for instance, Mr. Khrushchev—who was at the moment in the process of liquidating Hungary's former premier Nagy as the last remnant of the Hungarian uprising that was so brutally crushed with Red Army troops—delivered this pious statement: "To insist on interfering in the affairs of other states, on discussing their internal affairs by other countries which have no authority to do so, is to embark upon a road of grossly violating the United Nations Charter which prohibits such interference, is to mock at the principles of the United Nations."

How he must have chuckled as he read that one over!

Or again, deriding Western references to "tension in Eastern Europe," Mr. Khrushchev remarks: "I must note that we are unaware of any symptoms of any 'tension' in this area."

Perhaps the shade of Imre Nagy would be in agreement?

In the same letter the man whose agents run the puppet government of East Germany, and whose troops crushed a civilian revolt in that country, comes out with this sentiment: "After all, the Germans in both East and West of Germany speak the same tongue and would even need no interpreters in their talks, let alone foreign patrons to decide for the Germans' questions concerning the destinies of the German nation."

After that it comes as something of an anticlimax for the Soviet boss to add: "I think that an exchange of opinions can be really useful only if we are absolutely frank." That seems to put the whole letter in proper perspective.

Made Any Speeches Lately?

A KINDLY publisher—I forgot his name at the moment—has offered to help me with my public speeches for the modest sum of only $3. A book selling for that price contains, as I am assured by the publisher's letter, all the speeches that I or any other amateur speaker is ever likely to require.

Here are speeches for every possible occasion—the luncheon club, the ladies' sewing circle, the gentlemen's profane banquet or the sacred religious gathering. A whole world of oratory for

Unfortunately, I have retired, after a brief, inglorious experience, from the public speaking business or I certainly would buy that book. But I can recommend it to all practising orators and suspect, indeed, that many of them already use it.

THE speeches being delivered in Canada these days are of a very high quality, even when they issue from the lips of amateurs. Some skilled professionals must be writing them. They come, I conclude, out of that priceless, three-dollar book.

Does a statesman need to make a speech advocating a simultaneous expansion of world trade and higher tariffs? No longer need he delve in the Parliamentary Library or cudgel his brains in the summer heat of Ottawa. He looks up Free Trade and Protection in the index, finds speeches in favor of both and combines them in a single, extemporaneous utterance of impeccable English and unquestionable logic. We have had so many speeches of this admirable sort in the newspapers lately that it is obvious the book is widely used in the national capital.

Or does the statesman require a speech expressing his loyalty to Britain and the Canadian woolen industry? The book will give him the necessary Cheshire-phrases for the former and, for the latter, unanswerable arguments in favor of restricting British textile imports.

Again, if the statesman has always insisted on a balanced budget when the other party was in power he can find in the index a perfect defence of deficits now that he is in power. I do not suggest for a moment that Mr. Fleming employed that book in his recent budget speech, but it would have helped. And the whole NORAD snafu could have been avoided if only someone had looked up the index under the letter N.

MOST of our orators are not operating on this dizzy level. All they want is a half-hour speech to impress some humble assembly of their fellow townsmen—a speech, for example, predicting that the future lies before us, a sure-fire theme.

I cannot recall exactly how often I have heard that the future lies before us.

The Sisters

THE Ferguson girls, the islanders called them, though both were all of 30 and had lived in the brown frame house for more than 30 years.

Miss Martha was the busy one, plump and practical and always doing. Miss Mary was thin and quiet, dreamy.

"You'd never think they were sisters," the islanders used to say. "Martha's all Ferguson, while Mary's just like her mother's folks. They never had any get-up or go to them at all. Reading and thinking are all very well, but not when there's work to be done."

Thanks to Miss Martha, the Ferguson home was always spotless. The windows shone, the linens were of the whitest, and the floors never showed a speck of dirt. Nothing, ever, was too much trouble for Miss Martha. We weren't put into the world to sit around, she guessed!

The flowers and the books in the house were Miss Mary's contribution.

"Dust traps," Miss Martha used to mutter sometimes of the books, and now and then she'd grumble about the pollen and petals that fell from Mary's flowers.

For there were often times when Martha was irked by what she called Mary's selfishness.

One of these bursts of irritation happened when the minister came to stay. Normally, he only came to the island once a month to take a service at the little wooden church on the sunny slope beyond the island wharf.

But, on this occasion he was to stay overnight, and the Ferguson girls, all agreed, were the logical ones to put him up.

Miss Martha was in her element. For at least 10 days before his visit, she washed

YOUR HEALTH

An Epilepsy Case

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

I wish every physician and every epileptic in the country would read that remarkably instructive book "Three Loves of Dostoevsky" by Marc Sionim (Rinehart). Then perhaps epileptics could understand themselves better, and we physicians would not be so ignorant about the disease. Perhaps, then, no longer would we think of epilepsy as just fits. I cannot imagine anyone's reading Sionim's book and still thinking that epileptic's problem is just fits. No, in many cases the epileptic's greatest problem is living with a very irritable brain that works peculiarly.

Sionim begins by describing Fyodor Dostoevsky's father as "hot-tempered, morose and suspicious." He drank hard, and he was paranoid, tortured by suspicions even of the fine wife who managed somehow to love him deeply. From something once said by the family physician, one suspects that this man had seizures early in life. There is no doubt that in spells he was "horrible" and violent. On his estate he had his servants flogged so cruelly and so often and so needlessly that one day they jumped on him and beat him to death.

Fyodor was odd and peculiar and highly nervous from childhood on. He was often morose and unsociable and embarrassed in the presence of women. He was a manic-depressive in that sometimes he was gay and witty and animated, and sometimes sad and uncommunicative.

It seems probable that he had mild seizures early in life. Fortunately, he never took to drinking, but for most of his life he was passionately fond of gambling and hence always broke. He had many oddities, and live in great fear of being buried alive. He was subject to spasms. He was frightened nervous and impressionable. He was often haughty and irascible. All his life he was violently erotic. In 1846 he wrote, "I am incapable of leading a decent life." His nights were haunted by nightmares. Often he would talk to himself. At times he suffered terribly from "mystic horror—a most serious, most excruciating fear of something I cannot define." Such a spell might be followed by a convulsion, and then hypochondriasis, lethargy, weakness and impotence. He was a strange man, always very difficult to get along with. Whenever he was animated he bit his lips, he plucked at his sparse beard, and a tic (spasm) ran over his face.

Before a seizure his melancholy and irritation would increase; he would become morose and quarrelsome; at times he threw himself at people and yelled at them. He heard voices; visions swept past him as if in a dream or delirium, or else he experienced a poignant, unbearable blissfulness. After a convolution he was overcome with depression and anguish. He felt like a criminal, with an unknown guilt. He could be quarrelsome and insulting even with guests in his home. Even with his third wife, Anna, who loved him in spite of all his cruelties, he was insanely jealous and unreasonable in his suspicions. He made terrible scenes over nothing, and shouted at her until she had reason to fear he would attack her.

With friends he was always getting his feelings hurt; he had too much petty pride. At salons he felt so ill at ease that to protect himself he behaved like a bear. Like many persons with a violent temper, his gusts of passion soon blew over, leaving in him no memory of the storm.

Dostoevsky was always kind to children and they loved him.

I do hope that in publishing this abstract of a remarkable life-story of an epileptic I will be helping thousands of epileptics and their relatives to understand better the problems they sometimes face. I hope this note will make millions of people more understanding and forgiving when they have to deal with highly nervous epileptics.

Strike 'Not Off' Warns IWA Man

Woodworkers 'Not Disappointed' By 65 Per Cent Vote to Walk Out

People who believe B.C. lumber workers' recent 65 per cent strike vote is not a big enough majority for a walkout could get "the surprise of their lives," a Victoria official of the International Woodworkers of America said Wednesday.

Jack MacKenzie, president of Local 1-118, said some people were disappointed over the 65 per cent majority in favor of strike action obtained in Friday's government-supervised ballot, "but the IWA is not disappointed."

"Never before has our membership been subjected to such a lot of intimidation, outright lies and other things," he told a meeting of Victoria Labor Council.

The "surprise of some people's lives," he said, would come if coast lumber operators do not agree to what he termed "an honorable settlement."

He added that several of the conciliation board recommendations would deprive the union of benefits it had fought years to obtain.

"NEVER AGREE"

"The IWA will never agree to them," he said.

A motion by council secretary-secretary A. W. Toone that the meeting support the IWA in its wage dispute with the lumber operators was carried unanimously.

The council expressed concern over unemployment figures which totalled 5,052 in Victoria district last week, and heard from B.C. Government Employees' delegate Dennis Heintz that the total represented $1,000,000 in lost purchasing power.

"June and July are supposed to be the peak months," he said, "but there is no let-up. High unemployment was to be just a short breathing spell as far as the federal government was concerned, but already it has lasted two seasons and will be much worse in the winter."

SHIPYARDS HARD HIT

Boilermakers' representative Chester Preston said the employment situation in local shipyards was growing "drastically worse," pointing out that 35 workers were laid off at Victoria Machinery Depot recently. "The shipyards will continue to lose these trained men unless we do something about this situation," he went on. "They will then not be available for defence purposes in any emergency."

BORDEN HEARINGS ON U.S. DEAL

Westcoast Losses Disputed

TORONTO (CP) — The Borden commission on energy today continued hearings to determine whether Westcoast Transmission Company Limited is losing money on sales of gas to the United States.

The commission in its first day of hearings here Wednesday was told by one consulting firm that the Canadian-controlled company was losing out on a long-term deal with the U.S.-owned Pacific Northwest Pipeline Company.

Three other companies said the Canadian company was making a profit and two of the gas consulting specialists said Westcoast was losing money in 1958 on its Canadian operations. Westcoast has 650 miles of 30-inch pipe in British Columbia and Alberta.

Stone and Webster Canada Limited, in a report prepared for the commission in its New York office, said the Canadian company was getting 8 per cent less than it should for gas from the U.S. outfit. It was losing about $1,800,000 a year.

Westcoast was selling gas to Pacific Northwest for 22 cents for 1,000 cubic feet when it cost 22.22 to produce.

Three other companies hired by Westcoast estimated it was making a profit but they disagreed on the size of the gains.

The R. A. Ransom Company of Washington, D.C., said the cost to Westcoast in 1958 was only 16.64 cents, Sanderson and Porter of New York estimated it at 17.40 and Ford Bacon and Davis, also of New York, said it was 16.68.

NOT LOSING

Westcoast gave no indications of its costs Wednesday but president Frank M. McMahon of Calgary said the company is not losing money on the U.S. operations.

He was "naturally" anxious to obtain the "highest possible revenue" from the U.S. customer.

Charles A. Ashby, Stone and Webster engineer, admitted under cross examination by Westcoast counsel T. G. Norris of Vancouver that the report was based only on available evidence. Many factors were left out in preparation of the report.

A chef for Elizabeth II reveals his RECIPES FIT FOR THE QUEEN

Ever wonder what went on in a royal kitchen—or ended up on the royal dining table? Now, you can not only find out, you can serve some of this delightful fare to your own family! In this week's Saturday Evening Post, Charles Meliss, retired chef for England's House of Windsor—and for Queen Elizabeth herself—reveals some of his best recipes . . . and some of the Royal Family secrets, gastronomic and otherwise! You'll learn how to prepare pommes royals, tournebos, bonquetter and banana conde; the dessert served to the royal children instead of ice cream, which Elizabeth considers unsuitable. And you'll discover why it's so hard to serve a meal in Buckingham Palace—how Meliss equipped a train for royal dining even on tour—and how, as master of the kitchen, he even told the Queen what she could eat! Read "I Cooked for The Queen."

Colwood Course Ready To Test Closed Hopes

The narrow and testing 6,479 yards on Colwood's fairways will hold the centre of provincial golf interest at the weekend when a small but select field tees off in quest of the B.C. Closed golf championship.

The Colwood course, undergoing careful attention for several weeks now, won't be an easy test. The move to the back tees and the carefully-studied pin placements will throw a scare into more than one good golfer.

The 54-hole event starts Saturday, with two 18-hole rounds, and winds up Sunday. The experts feel a score of 212, two over par, may be good enough to "win it all."

For some, the Closed tournament means a chance for a berth on the Willingdon Cup team. The winner is practically assured of a spot on the interprovincial squad that will defend Canadian team honors in Toronto July 19.

A total of 37 entries, representing most of the top shotmakers in B.C., have been received to date. Because the list fell far short of expectations, tournament officials have announced that post entries will be accepted, an unprecedented move in recent years.

The one big name among the missing is Vancouver's Bob Kidd, defending champion and several times a member of the B.C. team. Business reasons will prevent him from defending his crown.

But all of Kidd's teammates from last year's cup team — Doug Bajus, Bert Cuthbert and Ron Willey — have entered. Joe Jeroski, an up-and-coming youngster, and John Russell are other leading Mainland threats.

Leading Victoria's contingent are two Colwood members — city champion Laurie Kerr and Bill McColl.

Port Angeles golfers captured their inter-team match with Gorge Vale by a 13-point margin. Gorge golfers won Sunday's match by 13 points, but couldn't overcome the whipping advantage that Port Angeles built up in the first meeting. Some hot rounds were reported at the weekend at the Gorge, Jack Storrie, John Merriman, Bob Johnson and Hugh Fletcher scored a best-ball 63, including a seven-under-par 29 on the second nine. Young Doug Munro and Dr. George Bigelow each marked up three-under-par 66s at Oak Bay, while clubmate Jim Barry posted a 68.

Competing in a special junior masters' tourney at Vancouver, Wakeham just missed dropping a 40-foot putt for an eagle three that he needed to tie Fraserview's Bill Carrington, the eventual winner.

Bill's One-Hit Gem Whips Teamsters

Bill McCreadie boosted Eagles into the second round of the Victoria Babe Ruth League playoffs Wednesday night, pitching a sparkling one-hit shutout as Eagles whipped Teamsters, 5-0, in a sudden-death game.

Menzies and Optimists will be battling for the other berth in the second round at Beacon Hill Park tonight when they meet at 6:30 in another sudden-death tussle.

THE TOWN OF YALE (1860)

In the days of the gold rush the town of Yale was not only the busy centre for the mining on the lower Fraser but the "jumping-off" point for the diggers farther up the river and a little later in the Cariboo. Until 1875 there was no road but the water route of the Fraser River between New Westminster and Yale. Following after the SS Beaver, a small fleet of paddle-wheel steamers ferried the miners and supplies up the Fraser to tie up at the boat slip at Yale. Beyond that point the swift waters of Hell's Gate Canyon prevented further navigation. The town in those days was a wild and riotous place. The thousands of miners who worked the sand-bars between Hope and Yale spent their gold dust freely in the saloons and dance halls. Daily trains of pack mules or parties of pack-

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers, and those who submit the best questions will receive valuable prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and a second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Frank J. Bruni, aged 12, of National City, Calif., for his question:

What Causes Freckles?

This is the sunny season and, onto a dent or ridge on the dermis, or true skin, which is under the epidermis. The tissue paper epidermis is forever drying up and flaking off to be replaced by a new epidermis from below.

The dermis, or true skin, is alive with nerves and blood vessels. It also contains oil glands and sweat glands. In some areas of the body it also contains hair roots. And down here in the true skin is the dye, which is called melanin.

All human skin contains some melanin and all melanin is the same color. It is brown. Some people have a lot of this brown pigment in the skin. Their complexions take on a coffee, chocolate or even ebony color. Some people only have a trace of melanin in the dermis. These people have pale, almost transparent skins. Their skins look pinkish because the red blood in the tiny blood vessels near the surface shows through.

The outer layer of skin is called the epidermis. It is a thin layer of papery tissue studded with tiny pits and furrows. Each of these dents fits

Mountain Park Opened

By Native Son

CROFTON—Maple Mountain Park, permanent North Cowichan centennial project, was opened here Sunday by George Evans, native son and centennial committee chairman.

The committee received $5,000 from the B.C. Centennial Committee for the development, where about $12,000 has been spent building a passable road through the park.

The entrance is on Osborn Bay Road about a mile south of here, and the road winds two and on-half miles to the viewpoint on top of the 1,600-foot mountain. It overlooks the Gulf Islands, and on a clear day observers can see buildings of the University of B.C. at Point Grey, 34 miles distant.

About half this sum already has been raised.

Ald. J. J. Kerrone is chairman of the drive, and Pete Henry, Kinsmen Club president, is organizer. Canvassers will be provided by Zenith Gyro Club, Lions Club, and Moose Lodge.

Ambulance Fund Drive Brings Over $1,500

QUALICUM BEACH—More than $1,500 was raised here in a Chamber of Commerce drive for funds to purchase an ambulance for the district.

Chamber members were assisted by ladies of the United Church Evening Circle. Outside collections included $200 from Bowser and Deep Bay, and $50 from Coombs.

Ambulance to be bought will be operated privately for two years by Rev. W. H. Bullock. It will serve school district 69, which extends from Nanoose to Bowser.

ISLAND DIGEST

PROVINCE'S PLAN

Towing Firm, Yachtsmen To Share Cove

A plan to give both yachtsmen and a towing firm use of Secret Cove, a popular haven for Victoria yachtsmen on the Sechelt Peninsula, has been worked out by the lands and forests department.

All sides of the problem of use of Secret Cove were discussed at a three-day public hearing, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said today.

As a result, he said, Nanaimo Towing Limited will be given a lease for log storage purposes, but the area will be only two hours wide. This will minimize interference with mooring and anchorage in the cove.

Provisions of the lease closely parallel a working arrangement already existing between the yachtsmen and towing company, Mr. Williston said. Arrangements were discussed by his own department and the recreation and conservation department, he said.

UN Mandate in Cyprus Agreeable to Greece

ATHENS (AP) — The newspaper "Ethnos" said Wednesday Greece would agree to Cyprus being placed under United Nations control for five to 10 years because of the deadlock with Turkey over the Mediterranean island.

The newspaper usually reflects the Greek government's views. An authoritative government source commented that such a plan would be agreeable in principle.

Ethnos said there are four main conditions to make a UN mandate over Cyprus acceptable to Greece:

1. The UN General Assembly must elect the governor, or the UN secretary-general formally hold the post and govern through a representative.

HOME HAZARDS

Fatal accidents in the home, such as accidental falls, number about 2,100 a year in Canada.

2. Britain could maintain as many military bases as considered necessary but should not interfere in administration.

3. A UN police force which excluded Britons, Greeks or Turks would be responsible for initial security.

4. At the end of the mandate period, the UN should decide the island's future.

Britain recently proposed that Greece and Turkey join her in joint administration of Cyprus for seven years and in holding sovereignty thereafter. Both Greece and Turkey rejected the plan.

HOME HAZARDS

Fatal accidents in the home, such as accidental falls, number about 2,100 a year in Canada.

NEW STATE GREAT FOR PGE

Bennett to Visit Alaska

Premier W. A. C. Bennett will make an official visit to Alaska when the far northern territory becomes the 49th state of the U.S.A.

"This has great significance for B.C. This province will be the only place in the world lying between two states of the union," he said Wednesday.

The premier said the value of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway will be greatly enhanced. This was taken to mean the B.C. government foresees a move by U.S. authorities to link Alaska to the U.S. proper, by a railway.

As the only railway running north and south through B.C. it is thought likely the government-owned PGE would be eventually extended to the northern border of the province to provide a new inter-state route.

Centennial Dollars
Get your shiny new Centennial Dollar at the BAY'S Information Booth, Main. Have a memento of B.C.'s 100th birthday as a treasured keepsake!

A Salute
to Pioneer Women
of B.C.

Most of the history of the Pacific Northwest has been written from a man's point of view. Tales of adventure in the days record the exploits of the sea captain, the soldier, the fur trader, the farmer, the engineer, the administrator. But there were women too—and what women they must have been! Some frilled and flounced, in crinolines and curls, newly-arrived from the sheltered shores of England... others in simple serge dresses with shawls and moccasins, women who crossed the plains up from the United States or who marched through the passes of the Rockies with their babies strapped to their backs. Fashionable Colonial ladies or wind-burnt plains women, they shared a common ideal: to follow their men without question or complaint, to bear children to people this new land, to make a home, plant a garden in a clearing... in short, to help build a nation.

HERE AND THERE . . .

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

Leading Victoria citizens, without their white collars, are running sideshows at the approved fair-ground style at the Gyro Carnival in the grounds of Central Junior High School.

B.C. Chamber of Commerce president Pat Dunn, looking even more Irish than usual in cap and tweeds, operates a bingo game. Alan Macfarlane, exchanging his lawyer's gown for a cowboy shirt, is in charge of a ball machine. Two more lawyers, Lloyd McKenzie and George Gregory, are busy enticing visitors onto the hole-in-one golf course.

Anxious fathers phoned the Royal Theatre late Monday night. They wondered what had happened to mothers and children attending the dance review put on by the Florence Clough Dancing Academy.

There were so many performers the show went on till nearly midnight!

You have to get up early to play in the Mount View High School Band. Their conductor, Howard Denike, tells me rehearsals are from 8 to 9 every weekday morning all through the school year.

OUR JUNE BUSTED OUT IN RECORDS

The brilliant, sunny June just ended was the hottest on record in Victoria, weatherman William Mackie said today.

The mean temperature for the month was 60.8 degrees, or 3.7 degrees above normal, he said. "Until now the warmest June listed in our 59 years of weather recording here was in 1948, when the mean temperature was 59.3 degrees."

Other weather statistics for June showed the maximum temperature as 82.3 degrees on the 17th, and the minimum 49.4 degrees June 30. Rainfall was only .40 inch, or .51 below normal, and there were four days with rain instead of the customary eight. Rainfall total since Jan. 1 is 9.17 inches, or 3.63 inches below normal.

Multi-Racial Tanganyika Doesn't Need Apartheid

While South Africa's apartheid policy drives whites and Negroes farther apart, in one part of Africa they are coming together, according to Arnold D. B. Wylie, government printer from Tanganyika.

"Tanganyika is multi-racial, and there is no discrimination," he said in an interview here to-day. On six months' leave,

Tall, Stately Gladioli Selling in Town Now!

By PENNY SAVER

The gladioli . . . that gorgeous flower with the tall stateliness of a queen and the faint fragrance to please the most fastidious is now in full bloom! In deep scarlet and creamy white, gladioli are selling in bunches at 85 cents each.

Deck your home or give a sick friend a bouquet of these delightful and locally-grown flowers.

Wicker flower-baskets are attractive for the patio in summer. Especially if they are hanging from a pole or the ceiling. These baskets come in all shapes and sizes . . . but the one I went for was the ball of wicker.

Inside, there was room for ivy or flowers to peep through or a wicker chair to suspend it. These wicker pretties are priced from $1 and up.

What a sale! Imagine, men's English shoes for wearing just about anywhere (including the golf course) are priced right now at $8.95. If you don't know where, why not phone me? These handsome toe tappers are in mahogany or black. And they're so smart you'll want to wear them all the time!

Women's Terry cloth ballet-type slippers are $1.95. This is a low, low price for such quality. They can be worn to the beach, around the house or on the patio. They're gaily embroidered and light as a feather! They're so soft, that's why!

Pick up the phone and give me a call at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where I shopped today!

THE BETTER HALF

"These volume knobs are great things—too bad there isn't one on you."

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

When divorcees remarries:

If a divorcee remarries, does she use her maiden name or her former marriage name as her middle name? If she had no permission at the time of the divorce to resume her maiden name and if she never had a middle name as a girl? For example: Mary Smith becomes Mrs. Louise Davis. John Jones when married, then Mrs. Mary Smith Jones after her divorce. By marrying James Proctor, does she become Mrs. Mary Proctor, Mrs. Mary Smith Proctor or Mrs. Mary Jones Proctor?

Louise Davis answers:

When divorced, Mrs. Mary Smith Jones is married to James Proctor, and her former husband's name is wiped out forever from her name and from her signature. Her name, therefore, is Mrs. James Proctor. Her signature, however (which is not to be confused with the name) can be Mary Proctor, Mary Smith Proctor or Mary S. Proctor. When signing any of these three to a letter where name and signature need clarifying, she identifies her name underneath the signature by writing in parentheses "(Mrs. James)" or "(Mrs. James Proctor)." That lets the answer know her name so that the envelope can be addressed to Mrs. James Proctor.

Silver Fox
May Stage
Comeback

NEW YORK (UPI)—Evening strollers on Fifth Avenue are turning to stare these days at women wearing long, exaggerated stoles of silver fox fur.

The stoles are as long as the famous feather boas of the Edwardian era. They are still not numerous but they are catching on with the fashion conscious—and for Canada that could mean something important.

Few people have any hope that the day will ever return when a single silver fox pelt is worth $2,000, but furs move in fashion cycles, and the silver fox, like red and blue fox, has been in eclipse now for 20 years not only in the United States, but in Britain and Europe and even in his home land, Canada.

SALES DOUBLED

But sales of all kinds of fox furs have doubled on the New York market in the last two years with the Arctic white fox also from Canada leading the parade.

Momentarily that isn't anything to get excited about because fox furs had fallen by the early 1950s almost to the bottom of the list in popularity. Far too many people, both in Canada and the United States, remember the huge investments lost in the collapses of the silver fox market in the 1920s and 1930s.

Actually the story of the silver fox is as remarkable in its way as the bizarre tulip speculation that drove Holland to the dizzy verge of bankruptcy back in the 17th century.

The silver fox boom began on Canada's Prince Edward Island in 1883. The black fox with the silver hairs was already a prized quarry of trappers. But in that year, Charles Dalton of Tignish, P.E.I., succeeding in getting a pair of silver foxes to produce two litters in captivity. A multi-million-dollar industry that paid fantastic dividends of up to 900 per cent on the speculative shares developed over the next 20 years.

The prices of breeding pairs reached a record of $32,500 by 1910. Nobody knows how many fortunes were made in Prince Edward Island silver fox ranching before the First World War. The first boom collapsed as the Kaiser's troops swept across Belgium in 1914 because the London market was the big one then.

POST-WAR BOOM

A new boom started after the war—with the U.S. the biggest market, but the Americans started raising silver fox too and with their characteristic energy they raised so many that by 1935 most any stenographer with a steady job could buy a silver fox jacket on the installment plan.

The market dwindled and almost vanished. By the middle of the Second World War a rancher couldn't sell a silver fox pelt for enough to pay for the feed the fox had eaten. There still are silver fox breeding associations in both Canada and the United States and both scan the fashion and trade papers eagerly to see how well the new silver fox boar or stole is going to catch on.

Summer Fete

Plans are being completed for St. Andrew's Cathedral annual summer fete to be held on July 5th commencing at 2 p.m. There will be a strawberry tea, home-cooking stalls, and games. In the evening games will be enjoyed and coffee and doughnuts served.

Marriage Vows Exchanged

The vestry of Centennial United Church was setting for a wedding recently, when Pamela Ellis Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Audley Hill-Gardner of Alberni Street, became the bride of Stephen George Wowchuk, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wowchuk of this city. Rev. Douglas Carr officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a waltz-length gown of white lace featuring a full-skirt posed over net and taffeta underskirt. The scooped neckline was edged with lace and the bodice had three-quarter-length sleeves. The back of the dress was caught at the high, wide waistband with a large bow of white taffeta. A tiny tiara of white lace and seed pearls held her elbow-length veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white roses.

A shell pink taffeta gown in waltz length was worn by the bride's only attendant, Mrs. Glen Beauchamp, Vancouver. The dress was styled with a large bow caught at the back waistline. She wore a matching bandeau of flowers in her hair and carried pink and white carnations mounted on an iridescent fan.

Michael Wowchuk was best man.

A three-tier cake flanked with candles and red rosebuds in silver containers centred the bridal table at a reception in the Golden Slipper Supper Club. Alfred Becker proposed the toast.

For a wedding trip to Washington state and the interior of B.C., the bride wore a lace-trimmed sheath style dress of cream, linen. She topped the ensemble with a corded silk coat of cocoa brown with matching accessories.

The newlyweds will make their home in Victoria.

Border Picnic

Members of 23 Women's Institutes of South Vancouver Island will act as hostesses at a border picnic to be held in Beacon Hill Park on Aug. 7. More than 100 members from groups across the border are expected to attend. Plans for the event were made at a special meeting of Brentwood Institute with Mrs. J. Macfarlane presiding. It was also decided at this meeting to sponsor a representative from Mount Newton High School at the United Nations seminar at University of British Columbia.

CLUB CALENDAR

Mission of the Good Shepherd Woman's Auxiliary, Prospect Lake Road, garden party Thursday at home of Mrs. R. Rance, opposite church hall, commencing at 2:30 p.m. Sale of home-cooking, sewing, novelties and surprise parcels. Afternoon tea served. The public may attend.

Visitors

Mrs. R. Beerkle and her daughter, of San Diego, were visitors in Victoria recently, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George D. McLean, 828 Island Road. Mr. and Mrs. McLean also have Mrs. Ruth Rockafellow visiting them from Honolulu.

Wedding at St. Luke's Church

Masses of flowers in pink, white and blue, arranged by St. Luke's Women's Auxiliary, formed the setting for the wedding of Evelyn May North and Denny Clifford Beaveridge in St. Luke's Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert North, Nanoose Bay, B.C., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Oakes, Saanichton. Rev. T. D. B. Wragg officiated at the double-ring ceremony, at which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

For her wedding the bride wore a waltz-length princess gown of white satin overlaid with silver embroidery. A seed pearl headdress held her waist-length veil, and she carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and white carnations.

In keeping with the pink and white theme of the wedding were gowns of pink nylon sheer worn by bridesmaids Miss Barbara Whipple and Miss Barbara North. Pink feather hats, white accessories and bouquets of pink carnations completed their costumes.

Cpl. Darcy A. Trousil, RCMP, was best man.

Ricketts proposed the toast to the bride.

Leaving later for a week's motor trip, the bride wore a sapphire blue chemise dress with matching hat, a white stole and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations and her seed pearl pendant was a gift from the groom.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN FRIDAY...

The brilliant child born Friday is certainly favored by the stars—far more than the majority, because the makeup is a strong-willed one and the ability to complete tasks is inherent. But be certain to give as well-rounded an education as possible, a combined course stressing the religious dogmas as well as the practical. For while the mind is mainly a logical one, the soul is also very luminous.

25,000 Cheer Fraser River Canoe Fleet

From CP Dispatches

VANCOUVER.—An estimated

25,000 spectators greeted the three canoes of the Fraser brigade Wednesday as they completed a 600-mile five-week voyage down the Fraser River from Prince George, B.C.

The trip, part of British Columbia centennial celebrations, retraced the 1808 voyage of Simon Fraser down the river that bears his name.

Dick Corliss, veteran river man from Prince George, dressed as Simon Fraser, presented a beaver pelt from Mayor Carey Jane Gray of Prince George to Ald. Halford Wilson, representing Mayor Fred Hume of Vancouver. The pelt will be sent to the provincial museum in Victoria.

Results were as follows:

North-South: 1. Bill Simpson, Bänkje and Gordon Rodger; 2. Molly Collins and Jack Goldie; 3. Frank Arlett and Harry Brown; 4. Eric Goodwin and Jim Duprav.

East-West: 1. Lil Tattersall and Elizabeth Warren; 2. Marjorie Crookston and Velma Ares; 3. Laura Tingley and Isabel Kelly; 4. Ethel Cleworth and Tony Marsh.

OLMSTEAD REMANDED

VANCOUVER.—A National Hockey League star charged with assault was remanded three weeks Wednesday so he could return to his Saskatchewan home to attend to some farm business.

Bail was set at $500 for Murray Bert Olmstead, 31, of

Toronto Maple Leafs, when he appeared in police court charged with assault causing bodily harm to mining promoter Ralph Rooney, 32, of West Vancouver.

BABY SWANS STOLEN

VANCOUVER.—Zoo curator Alan Best said Wednesday two of six baby swans at

Vancouver's Stanley Park

have been stolen.

Mr. Best said: "It's a wanton sort of thing. The cygnets won't survive taken from their parents at this stage. They are good for nothing but to die."

KAYAK RACE ENDS

VANCOUVER.—Rudolf Lub-

inger of Steyr, Austria won the

135-mile B.C. centennial Kayak

race down the Fraser River from Lytton, B.C., to Vancouver.

He finished the fourth leg of the race here Wednesday. His overall time was 13 hours 35 seconds.

Karl Schroeder of Munich,

Germany, was second in 16:06:1.

Herbert Holzapfel, also from

Munich, captured third in 13:09:50.

SHOTS FIRED

VANCOUVER.—An intruder

fired a shot from a 22-calibre pistol over the heads of two sleeping children Wednesday,

then fled without attempting robbery.

Police said the man broke into an east-end suite, yelled "Everybody, don't move" at the members of two families in the suite, then fired a shot through a wall.

In bed below where the bullet hit were John Martin, six, and his brother Peter, one.

U.K. SPREE FOR TOP CITY CARRIER

Ken All Set for His 'Grand Tour'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Three exciting weeks in the British Isles—a wonderland of new scenes and new impressions—lie ahead of Ken O'Coffey, 14-year-old Times carrier.

On Friday morning Ken takes off from Pat Bay Airport for Montreal where he will join 44 other carriers embarking on a comprehensive tour of England and Scotland sponsored by The Times and Weekend Magazine.

This is Ken's reward—for sustained good service and a near-perfect record during the three years he has been delivering The Times in the Pembroke, Gladstone and Fernwood area.

"I still find it hard to believe I am really going on this trip," quiet well-mannered Ken said today.

"When The Times first told me about it four weeks ago, I was almost stunned with surprise. Now I am gradually getting used to the idea and in just a few more hours it will become a reality."

Ken is actually the first member of his family to visit Britain since his grandparents emigrated from Reading, Berkshire, in 1889.

"I have some cousins over there," he said, "and I plan to look them up."

HISTORIC SITES

Ken and his 44 fellow carriers will visit famous historic sites in London, then make a motor coach tour of mouth, Stratford-on-Avon, Salisbury and Oxford.

Windsor, Hampton Court Palace, Runnymede, Bourne-

Following a visit to the gay

seaside town of Blackpool,

they will tour the Lake District en route to Scotland.

The boys are due to leave

Scotland's Prestwick Airport

for the return journey on

July 21 and will be back in Canada July 22.

The trip is made available to them on an all-expenses paid basis through the co-operation of The Times, Weekend Magazine and Trans-Canada Air Lines.

Ken was chosen by Stewart Kidd, circulation director of Victoria Press, in recognition of his efficient record and politeness to customers.

He has delivered The Times

People and Things

From Times News Services

TORONTO—Joshiaki Hiramatsu, 42, who cut a girl's face June 15 after she allegedly helped him spend $8,000 on herself and then jilted him, was sentenced to four months in jail Wednesday.

In court Louise Mangum showed two scars on her face and said 14 stitches were needed to close the wounds.

MOOREHEAD, Minn.—Marvin A. Everson, a Moorehead businessman, is seeking nomination to oppose Representative Coyle Knutson (Dem., Minn.)—with the support of Mrs. Knutson's husband, Andy.

Knutson, operator of a cafe at Oklee, was a member of a committee which persuaded Everson to make the race. Earlier he had asked his wife

. . . GOLDFINE

staff members, William Safire and George Britt, to the task of getting information from Goldfine and his battery of lawyers and relaying it to reporters.

McCrary's television background crops out when he refers to Goldfine's prepared texts as "the scripts."

NO FEE

McCrary says he is here serving without fee or compensation for expenses, and purely because of his long standing friendship with Robb. It might also be noted, however, that McCrary has been one of Sherman Adams' most ardent supporters and admirers since the 1952 presidential campaign which first carried Dwight D. Eisenhower to political success.

A prime example of McCrary at work was the 25-page document Goldfine read to the subcommittee Wednesday at his opening testimony. Here is the unvarnished story of how the document came into existence.

When it was determined Goldfine would have to appear before the House members, Lawrence Cohen of Boston, family attorney for the Goldfines, began to put together the essential facts. Samuel Sears, also of Boston and an attorney for Goldfine's companies, joined in the preparation.

EXPECT COACHING

Robb joined the advance guard in work on the testimony with his specialist's eye on Washington angles. When the Goldfines came to Washington last Sunday they were joined by other attorneys including former judge Sol Gelb of New York who was on the staff of Thomas E. Dewey when Dewey was New York district attorney. Gelb is a specialist in cross-examination and coached Goldfine on what to expect.

On Tuesday night the testimony was virtually complete. Robb spent long hours talking with Goldfine. Armed with technical and financial data from Cohen, Sears and James Kelleher, another Boston attorney, Robb then sat down and put on paper Goldfine's words and style of phrasing.

Late Tuesday night, not many hours before Goldfine made his debut before the committee, the textile manufacturer read the final draft aloud. McCrary listened, watched and made notes, taking care to remember each time Goldfine pounded his fist on a bedside table for emphasis.

Then a final-final or "read-ing" copy for Goldfine was prepared and here McCrary went to work. He followed his television training and "scored" the testimony, underlining in heavy red pencil each point—a word or a phrase—where Goldfine had pounded for emphasis.

He explained to Goldfine the red underlines meant those words were to be "punched" or accented.

McCrary also noted that after reading for a few minutes Goldfine's voice began to crack. In red pencil he wrote into the script at appropriate points, "glass of water."

One line McCrary recognized as a laugh producer, but thought Goldfine should remain serious. Tex wrote between the lines, "Don't laugh."

When the script was "scored" it was well after midnight and Goldfine was asleep.

Robb confided to McCrary his firm belief Goldfine's massive inner strength would see him through the tribulations of the congressional inquiry. In fact he thought Goldfine would be great.

McCrary smiled, reached for the script and fished out his crayon. Across the top of the first sheet McCrary wrote in firm red letters, "You will be great."

. . . DOCTORS

had nothing to say regarding the decision.

The announcement was the first statement by the medical association since its special investigation into the situation was completed May 13.

The closed inquiry, headed by Vancouver Judge R. A. Sargent, was set up last October after an income tax appeal board ruled that the doctors would have to pay tax on the kickback assessments.

CONSPIRACY CLAIMED

The doctors appealed the assessments on the grounds that the money was non-taxable capital gain on shares in Prescription Optical Co. Ltd.

The income tax department claimed there was a conspiracy between the doctors and Standard Optical Co., Imperial Optical Co. Ltd., Oculist Prescription Co. Ltd. and H. A. Boyner of Vancouver.

The government claimed the conspiracy was "in fraud of the government to arrange a purported sale of shares in the capital stock of Oculist Prescription Co. to Standard Optical Co. to represent the said money as capital receipts whereas the money received by the appellants as a result of the said conspiracy was income."

INGENIUS SCHEME

Cecil L. Snyder, assistant appeal board chairman, ruled against the doctors and said: "What transpired was no more than an ingeniously contrived scheme to pay extra sums of money for a period of 10 years to the co-operating doctors, and thus to assure a continuing rich volume of business to the Toronto optical organization."

Mr. Snyder said the sale price was to be paid to the doctors over 10 years. Although each doctor was credited with one share, none knew how much the others were receiving in cash.

"It was made clear in evidence," said the board's judgment, "and it is abundantly plain, that each of the doctors was paid in accordance with the productivity of his professional practice."

an agreement was made that the doctors were to get at least $4.50 for each prescription or repair job sent to Imperial.

When a change in the Medical Act made such dealings illegal, Mr. Snyder said the doctors evolved "an ingeniously contrived scheme" to retain their financial benefits.

The tax appeal board claimed this was an arrangement in which the local optical firm—the one whose assets were sold in 1931—was purchased by Standard Optical of Toronto, a subsidiary of Imperial.

Mr. Justice Wilson listened attentively to this new facet of the long case. But he gave no indication as to when he might consider and rule on the involved point of law.

The veteran counsel followed lawyers Douglas McK. Brown and Angelo Branca. The former, representing B.C. Forest Products Limited, said all but two of the charges against his client should be nullified for lack of evidence. Mr. Branca, speaking for Sommers, submitted there was no conclusive evidence to support the Crown's charges of bribery against the former minister.

. . . JUDGE

Mr. Bull, representing Charles D. Schultz and the big timber engineering firm of the same name, said too much attention had been paid to the question of "procedural" law in connection with the question of the limitation section.

Mr. Justice Wilson listened attentively to this new facet of the long case. But he gave no indication as to when he might consider and rule on the involved point of law.

The veteran counsel followed lawyers Douglas McK. Brown and Angelo Branca. The former, representing B.C. Forest Products Limited, said all but two of the charges against his client should be nullified for lack of evidence. Mr. Branca, speaking for Sommers, submitted there was no conclusive evidence to support the Crown's charges of bribery against the former minister.

UN Mandate in Cyprus Agreeable to Greece

ATHENS (AP) — The newspaper Ethnos said Wednesday Greece would agree to Cyprus being placed under United Nations control for five to 10 years because of the deadlock with Turkey over the Mediterranean island.

The newspaper usually reflects the Greek government's views. An authoritative government source commented that such a plan would be agreeable in principle.

Ethnos said there are four main conditions to make a UN mandate over Cyprus acceptable to Greece:

1. The UN General Assembly must elect the governor, or the UN secretary-general formally hold the post, and govern through a representative.

2. Britain could maintain as many military bases as considered necessary but should not interfere in administration.

3. A UN police force which excluded Britons, Greeks or Turks would be responsible for initial security.

4. At the end of the mandate period, the UN should decide the island's future.

Britain recently proposed that Greece and Turkey join her in joint administration of Cyprus for seven years and in holding sovereignty thereafter. Both Greece and Turkey rejected the plan.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold said today he found no evidence of any mass entry of United Arab Republic forces into Lebanon during his recent trip to the strife-torn country.

Meanwhile it was reported from Beirut that rebels had launched a counter-attack at the main east-west highway from Beirut to Damascus and fought for control of another road supplying government forces fighting south-east of Beirut.

Seafarers Voting On Work Return

Some 350 members of the Seafarers' International Union cast ballots today in a crucial secret vote to decide if CPR ferries will resume service immediately.

Voting was conducted in Vancouver, Victoria and Nanaimo. Results were not expected to be known until late today.

Norman Cunningham, SIU port agent in Vancouver, said the members would vote on a recommendation made Tuesday by federal mediator Eric Taylor.

Taylor's two-point proposal recommended: Immediate and voluntary resumption of the ferry service by the company, SIU and two officers' unions involved in the dispute; arbitration of the original pre-conciliation positions of both sides by a federal appointee to be completed by Aug. 15.

The Marine Engineers Association and the Canadian Merchant Service Guild have wired federal Labor Minister Michael Starr that they accept the recommendation. The CPR also has agreed.

But on the SIU "front," our committee turned down the recommendation and we're going to the membership to see if they will back up the committee," Mr. Cunningham said.

SIU acceptance could mean resumption of the 10-ship Princess fleet's operations by Saturday, eight weeks after the start of the strike.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson disclosed today that he has been receiving anonymous letters about the Sommers bribery-conspiracy trial which he is conducting.

The B.C. Supreme Court Justice made his disclosure as he addressed the jury and excused them until Wednesday while defence argument continues for dismissal of some or all of the charges against former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers, three other individuals and four companies.

Mr. Justice Wilson said he hopes the jurors will not lose faith "in the process of which you are most important," and then added:

"I know you are not like those fanatical people who have been writing me anonymous letters and have done so right through this trial, accusing me of some kind of attempt to free those accused."

IN 34TH DAY

The judge did not elaborate on his remarks.

The disclosure came as the trial went into its 34th day with veteran counsel Alfred Bull arguing for dismissal of all charges against his clients, Charles D. Schultz and the big timber engineering company of the same name.

Last week the justice ruled that the "limitation" section of the old criminal code of Canada — excluding prosecution for a bribery charge more than two years old — did not apply in the trial involving former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers, three other executives and four companies.

But he remarked at the time that he was open to reconsideration.

Wednesday Mr. Bull asked the justice to reconsider.

Eye Doctors Suspended 3 Months

Appeal Planned In Kickback Case

An undisclosed number of Vancouver eye specialists will have their licences suspended for three months, the council of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons announced today.

An appeal to the courts will be launched by the doctors before their suspensions go into effect Aug. 6.

The suspensions arise from an income tax appeal board ruling last September that Vancouver and Victoria doctors would have to pay tax on an estimated $390,000 received in "kickbacks" from optical firms during the last decade.

Not all the doctors are living now.

Victoria doctors H. G. Grieve and J. A. Stewart, involved in the income tax appeal, are not affected by the suspensions.

The medical society's announcement said:

"After complete investigation and consideration by the council of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of B.C., a number of ophthalmologists (eye specialists) in Vancouver will have their licence to practise suspended for a period of three months, this period to begin in six weeks time from June 25."

REASON UNDISCLOSED

The cryptic statement did not disclose grounds for the suspensions or how many doctors were involved. However, it is understood that about 12 doctors will be suspended.

Names of the doctors involved in the income tax appeal and the assessed incomes from the deal were:

Victoria — Dr. Grieve, $19,000; Dr. Stewart, $12,000;

Vancouver — A. R. Anthony, $54,754; C. E. Davies, $35,904;

J. A. McLean, $29,172; J. A. Lawrence, $28,723; R. G. Galbraith, $24,235; L. H. Webster, $17,900; E. F. Raynor, $16,157;

G. S. Elliott, $13,464; L. H. Lessen, $13,464; G. H. Francis, $9,088; O. E. Kirby, $8,976; Josephine and Howard Mallek, $8,976; W. E. Ainley, $7,180; E. E. Day, $7,180 and R. S. Grimmett estate, $4,488;

Kamloops — F. P. McNamee, $19,000.

Vancouver lawyer J. L. Lawrence, representing some of the unidentified doctors, said he has begun proceedings to bring an appeal before the B.C. Supreme Court as allowed under the Medical Act.

He declined to give any other information.

College president Dr. Ronald Scott-Moncrieff, of Victoria, said through his secretary that he

Goldfine Admits Gift To 'Poor Workers'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bernard Goldfine acknowledged today making what he called Christmas present payments to numerous White House and congressional employees. But he denied a suggestion that may explain the mysterious distribution of $750,000.

The Boston industrialist refused to give House investigators his records of $750,000 worth of cheques drawn on funds of his enterprises but never cashed.

Goldfine contended the matter was not relevant to the committee's investigation of his relations with Sherman Adams, chief aide to President Eisenhower, and the treatment of Goldfine businesses by federal regulatory agencies.

Goldfine said his Christmas present payments to White House and congressional employees were of the $25 variety.

"At Christmas time these are all cheques that we sent to some poor workers," he said.

Robert W. Lishman, counsel to the investigating committee, said the cheques totalling $750,000 may have gone to federal employees "who may have been too bashful to get them cashed."

The third Canadian seized by the rebels is Richard Sargent, about 50, of Toronto. He is a sugar mill executive.

24-Hour Check

KELOWNA (CP) — Police today continued a 24-hour check on motorists, in an attempt to uncover a lead that will bring an end to terrorist activities in B.C.'s southeast corner.

Asked if he will return to the mining project from which he was kidnapped along with engineer Harold G. Kristjanson, 37, of Geraldton, Ont., he said: "Sure."

"I don't fear those people," he added. "We were treated fine."

staff members, William Safire and George Britt, to the task of getting information from Goldfine and his battery of lawyers and relaying it to reporters.

McCrory's television background crops out when he refers to Goldfine's prepared texts as "the scripts."

NO FEE
McCrory says he is here serving without fee or compensation for expenses, and purely because of his long standing friendship with Robb. It might also be noted, however, that McCrory has been one of Sherman Adams' most ardent supporters and admirers since the 1952 presidential campaign which first carried Dwight D. Eisenhower to political success.

A prime example of McCrory at work was the 25-page document Goldfine read to the subcommittee Wednesday at his opening testimony. Here is the unvarnished story of how the document came into existence. When it was determined Goldfine would have to appear before the House members, Lawrence Cohen of Boston, family attorney for the Goldfines, began to put together the essential facts. Samuel Sears, also of Boston, and an attorney for Goldfine's companies, joined in the preparation.

EXPECT COACHING
Robb joined the advance guard in work on the testimony with his specialist's eye on Washington angles. When the Goldfines came to Washington last Sunday they were joined by other attorneys including former Judge Sol Gelb of New York who was on the staff of Thomas E. Dewey when Dewey was New York district attorney. Gelb is a specialist in cross-examination and coached Goldfine on what to expect.

On Tuesday night the testimony was virtually complete. Robb spent long hours talking with Goldfine. Armed with technical and financial data from Cohen, Sears and James Kelleher, another Boston attorney, Robb then sat down and put on paper Goldfine's words and style of phrasing.

Late Tuesday night, not many hours before Goldfine made his debut before the committee, the textile manufacturers read the final draft aloud. McCrory listened, watched and made notes, taking care to remember each time Goldfine pounded his fist on a bedside table for emphasis.

Then a final-final or "reading" copy for Goldfine was prepared and here McCrory went to work. He followed his television training and "scored" the testimony, underlining in heavy red pencil each point—a word or a phrase—where Goldfine had pounded for emphasis.

He explained to Goldfine the red underlines meant those words were to be "punched" or accented.

McCrory also noted that after reading for a few minutes Goldfine's voice began to crack. In red pencil he wrote into the script at appropriate points, "glass of water."

One line McCrory recognized as a laugh producer, but thought Goldfine should remain serious. Tex wrote between the lines, "Don't laugh."

When the script was "scored" it was well after midnight and Goldfine was asleep.

Robb confided to McCrory his firm belief Goldfine's massive inner strength would see him through the tribulations of the congressional inquiry. In fact he thought Goldfine would be great.

McCrory smiled, reached for the script and fished out his crayon. Across the top of the first sheet McCrory wrote in firm red letters, "You will be great."

had nothing to say regarding the decision.

The announcement was the first statement by the medical association since its special investigation into the situation was completed May 13.

The closed inquiry, headed by Vancouver Judge R. A. Sargent, was set up last October after an income tax appeal board ruled that the doctors would have to pay tax on the kickback assessments.

CONSPIRACY CLAIMED

The doctors appealed the assessments on the grounds that the money was non-taxable capital gain on shares in Prescription Optical Co. Ltd.

The income tax department claimed there was a conspiracy between the doctors and Standard Optical Co., Imperial Optical Co. Ltd., Oculist Prescription Co. Ltd. and H. A. Boyaner of Vancouver.

The government claimed the conspiracy was "in fraud of the government to arrange a purported sale of shares in the capital stock of Oculist-Prescription Co. to Standard Optical Co. to represent the said money as capital receipts whereas the money received by the appellants as result of the said conspiracy was income."

INGENIUS SCHEME
Cecil L. Snyder, assistant appeal board chairman, ruled against the doctors and said:

"What transpired was no more than an ingeniously contrived scheme to pay extra sums of money for a period of 10 years to the co-operating doctors, and thus to assure a continuing rich volume of business to the Toronto optical organization."

Mr. Snyder said the group of B.C. eye specialists had set up an optical company as far back as 1924. He said the assets were bought in 1931 by Imperial Optical Company of Toronto and was to be paid to the doctors over 10 years. Although each doctor was credited with one share, none knew how much the others were receiving in cash.

"It was made clear in evidence," said the board's judgment, "and it is abundantly plain, that each of the doctors was paid in accordance with the productivity of his professional practice."

The tax appeal board claimed this was an arrangement in which the local optical firm—the one whose assets were sold in 1931—was purchased by Standard Optical of Toronto, a subsidiary of Imperial.

Mr. Snyder said the sale price was to be paid to the doctors over 10 years. Although each doctor was credited with one share, none knew how much the others were receiving in cash.

"It was made clear in evidence," said the board's judgment, "and it is abundantly plain, that each of the doctors was paid in accordance with the productivity of his professional practice."

The veteran counsel followed lawyers Douglas McK. Brown and Angelo Branca. The former, representing B.C. Forest Products Limited, said all but two of the charges against his client should be nullified for lack of evidence. Mr. Branca, speaking for Sommers, submitted there was no conclusive evidence to support the Crown's charges of bribery against the former minister.

Mr. Bull, representing Charles D. Schultz and the big timber engineering firm of the same name, said too much attention had been paid to the question of "procedural" law in connection with the question of the limitation section.

Mr. Justice Wilson listened attentively to this new facet of the long case. But he gave no indication as to when he might consider and rule on the involved point of law.

'Glorying in Gloom,'
Says Finance Minister

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA—Finance Minister Fleming regards opposition criticisms of his 1958-59 budget as "a wail unworthy of Canadians."

Referring specifically to the Liberals, he said in the House Wednesday the opposition is "glorying in gloom" and that Canada's credit would not be helped by irresponsible statements.

The opposition's attempts to destroy confidence in Canada, if successful, might cause a deficit larger than his forecast of $648,000,000.

Mr. Fleming spoke just before the Progressive Conservative majority buried a Liberal

Lack of Publicity Hurts Senate

Senator Leon M. Gouin says lack of publicity is the main reason why the Senate is so often criticized as a "practically useless" body.

The Quebec Liberal senator made the statement Wednesday shortly before the Upper House passed the traditional government motion approving the Throne Speech read at the opening of Parliament. The Commons gave its approval May 29.

Senator Gouin said the upper chamber plays an important role in the Canadian legislative process in giving a second sober look at government legislation.

"Such criticism takes place, in my opinion, because our activities are not publicized enough and thus they are simply ignored."

He cited no exact figures but it appeared that federal aid for the project would probably exceed $70,000,000, leaving the province to handle the rest of the project whose total estimated cost for dam, power and irrigation components has been estimated at about $185,000,000.

The draft agreement has been sent to Saskatchewan, the prime minister told the House, and he expressed hope it would be signed at the earliest possible date, enabling a start on the project "within the next few weeks."

The draft made no mention of Saskatchewan's request for a $25,000,000 loan to help finance the power phase of the project at Outlook, Sask., 60 miles southwest of Saskatoon.

PM Reveals Plans to Aid Power Project

Prime Minister Diefenbaker outlined Wednesday details of a draft agreement by which the federal government would finance its assistance for the South Saskatchewan River power-irrigation project largely to the earthen dam itself.

Shooting may start in August, he said.

BY-ELECTION

Eleventh-Hour Entry Boosts Saanich Field

Leslie H. Passmore, a former reeve and councillor of Saanich, entered the contest for a seat on council just before nominations closed at noon Wednesday.

A by-election will be held July 12 to elect a new reeve and a new council member.

Councillor George Chatterton, who resigned his seat to seek the reeveship, also filed papers at Saanich municipal hall a short time before nominations closed.

Two others contesting the reeveship with Councillor Chatterton are Cunningham H. S. MacMillan, 971 Lodge and Archibald H. Abbott, 174 Gow.

Three others contesting the six-shooters" by Calgary "cowboys" marked the end of the 23rd national Jaycee convention today as weary delegates turned inward.

Three days of business and fun wound up Wednesday night with the president's banquet and ball, leaving only tag ends of business in the hands of committee.

Wednesday afternoon saw two near "riots" in the Georgian lounge of the Empress Hotel as the site for the 1960 convention was announced and a new president chosen.

All candidates will address an election forum to be held in the Lake Hill Women's Institute Hall July 10 at 8:30 p.m.

"This is a 'Do It Yourself' era," C. W. Wilkinson, president of the Saanich Voters' Association, said today. "And the most important 'Do It Yourself' project is voting in elections."

He said if citizens and ratepayers ignored their right to vote they could lose that right.

Kiwanis Name Head

CHICAGO (AP)—Kenneth B. Loheed, Toronto shoe merchant, won election Wednesday as president of Kiwanis International. Loheed, a 32-year veteran of Kiwanis and formerly a vice-president, was unopposed for the top office at the 43rd annual convention.

Cast aluminum has been used extensively to keep weight down—even the deck bollards are of aluminum. The hull is designed so the craft gets up on the step at cruising speed, cutting down resistance to water.

Thus the twin GM diesels produce 470 horsepower at 2,300 revolutions. At under 2,000 revs. Western Hemlock steams along at about 18 knots, her economical cruising speed. At 2,300, she will produce 22 knots or better.

Western Hemlock is 11 feet in beam, but only of six foot moulded depth, enabling her to work well in shallow waters.

She carries fuel for 20 hours at cruising speed—about 400 nautical miles.

Speed was essential if she was to prove adequate for the job, and speed she has, due largely to ingenious design and use of materials.

A Doubtful Strike

VOTING SECRETLY, UNDER government supervision, some 33 per cent of the coast lumber workers opposed a strike. The majority, of course, has an undoubted legal right to go ahead with the proposed strike but it is unlikely to succeed when the union is so divided within itself. A successful strike in a great industry, involving thousands of workers, requires the overwhelming support of the union members. Such support is lacking in the present dispute which threatens to disrupt the economy of British Columbia.

It remains to be seen whether the union will force a strike after a verdict so lukewarm and indecisive. Certainly the recent vote will serve only to encourage management in its resistance to a wage increase during a period of falling profits. If there is a strike it is likely to be a long one, with huge losses not only to industrialists and lumber workers but to the whole province.

Meanwhile the union vote cast a vivid new light on the present operations of our labor laws.

When the union called a private strike vote, to test the sentiment of the members, many of them did not bother to vote. Of those who voted a vast majority favored a strike. The pressure to give the union leaders a blank cheque and a powerful weapon in negotiating with management was irresistible.

But when the chips were down and the final vote was held, with private ballots, under government supervision, the result was entirely different. When virtually all union members vote, and when they can vote secretly, as in a political election, about one-third of their total number refuses to go along with the leaders and decides that a strike would be unwise under present conditions.

The virtue of the secret ballot, protected by government supervisor, was never more clearly demonstrated.

This remarkable incident raises an important question: If the Legislature is determined to enforce a secret vote on any strike why should it authorize a preliminary, public vote where the actual opinion of the members is not likely to be revealed, as it was not revealed in the recent lumber union vote?

Labor unions are absolutely entitled to strike under the law and, except in a few vital industries essential to the community, that right is not very often questioned. The Legislature has said, however, in its statutes, that a strike must not be undertaken without a vote assuring rule by the majority and also the protection of the secret ballot.

That being so, and the supervisor vote established by law, what is the purpose of a preliminary strike vote except to foment strikes and discourage workers who are opposed to them?

A second question arose in the recent lumber vote, as it has arisen frequently before now.

Under the existing law a union can decide to strike and need not strike for three months. In the meantime, the threat of a strike can be used as a bargaining weapon against management, which never knows if or when its industry will be paralyzed.

Business has protested, rightly we believe, against this procedure because it can and often does produce weeks of harassment and uncertainty.

The Legislature would be wise to provide by law that, after taking a strike vote, a union must strike within, say, a week, or call off the strike altogether. This provision would not deprive labor of any essential right but it would eliminate one very serious abuse.

Contributing to Education

NEXT MONDAY THE VICTORIA College summer session will open for seven weeks' courses which have become an important factor in British Columbia's educational program.

Mainly the classes are designed to give teachers the opportunity to improve their professional standing. All credit courses—and they have been doubled this year to 30—can be applied to university degrees in education and arts and science.

In addition to these, seven non-credit courses have been arranged to offer intellectual stimulation and entertainment to the local community. The latter range through Vic-

New And Unenviable Record

CANADIANS HAVE SET A NEW and unenviable record of traffic fatalities and drownings over the four day holiday period ending Tuesday at midnight.

In all, 110 lost their lives in accidents, about half of them on the highway. The death of a woman in Victoria at an early hour Saturday morning is included in that listing, as is that of a boy drowned at Campbell River.

On the open highway, however, motorists fared well on Vancouver Island. There was none of the grinding crashes which result in fatalities, in spite of the fact that traffic was heavy.

This is relatively reassuring. The downtown accident cannot properly be charged against speed on the highway. Islanders have escaped by a combination of good luck and reasonably careful driving.

It must be obvious, however, that careful operation of a car is not a matter solely of concern on a prolonged holiday weekend. The dangers of the highway exist every day and all year.

The lesson of the weekend on the Island is simple: extra care gets you there. That is a slogan to be kept in mind by all drivers at all times.

One Man, Two Faces

THERE ARE VARIOUS REASONS why a collection of Mr. Nikita Khrushchev's writings might be made. They could furnish facts of historical interest for future generations, they could add in some instances to the humorous literature of the world, to its store of rhetoric, its library of psychological analyses, and so on. But a further collection of Khrushchevisms might well be made to add to mankind's library of hypocrisy.

Perhaps a more diplomatic word would be satire. But it must be true that in the field of diplomacy, where the poker face traditionally hides the tongue in cheek, few practitioners have outdone the Moscow leader in the art of lavishing sincerity on a fabrication.

In his recent letter to President Eisenhower, for instance, Mr. Khrushchev—who was at the moment in the process of liquidating Hungary's former premier Nagy as the last remnant of the Hungarian uprising that was so brutally crushed with Red Army troops—delivered this pious statement: "To insist on interfering in the affairs of other states, on discussing their internal affairs by other countries which have no authority to do so, is to

Made Any Speeches Lately?

A KINDLY publisher—I forget his name at the moment—has offered to help me with my public speeches for the modest sum of only $3. A book selling for that price contains, as I am assured by the publisher's letter, all the speeches that I or any other amateur speaker is ever likely to require.

Here are speeches for every possible occasion—the luncheon club, the ladies' sewing circle, the gentlemen's profane banquet or the sacred religious gathering. A whole world of oratory for $3.

Unfortunately, I have retired, after a brief, inglorious experience, from the public speaking business or I certainly would buy that book. But I can recommend it to all practising orators and suspect, indeed, that many of them already have it.

THE speeches being delivered in Canada these days are of a very high quality, even when they issue from the lips of amateurs. Some skilled professional pen must be writing them. They come, I conclude, out of that priceless, three-dollar book.

Does a statesman need to make a speech advocating a simultaneous expansion of world trade and higher tariffs?

No longer need he delve in the Parliamentary Library or cudgel his brains in the summer heat of Ottawa. He looks up Free Trade and Protection in the index, finds speeches in favor of both and combines them in a single, extemporaneous utterance of impeccable English and unquestionable logic. We have had so many speeches of this admirable sort in the newspapers lately that it is obvious the book is widely used in the national capital.

OR does the statesman require a speech expressing his loyalty to Britain and the Canadian woolen industry? The book will give him the necessary Churchillian phrases for the former and, for the latter, unanswerable arguments in favor of restricting British textile imports.

Again, if the statesman has always insisted on a balanced budget when the other party was in power he can find in the index a perfect defence of deficits now that he is in power. I do not suggest for a moment that Mr. Fleming employed that book in his recent budget speech, but it would have helped. And the whole NORAD snafu could have been avoided if only someone had looked up the index under the letter N.

The lesson of the weekend on the Island is simple: extra care gets you there. That is a slogan to be kept in mind by all drivers at all times.

MOST of our orators are not operating on this dizzy level. All they want is a half-hour speech to impress some humble assembly of their fellow townsmen—a speech, for example, predicting that the future lies before us, a sure-fire theme.

I cannot recall exactly how often I have heard that the future lies before us, but a thousand times at least in the last year until I cannot longer doubt it.

A professional orator can use a full hour to prove that fact beyond cavil. An amateur should invest three dollars in the book.

Then there is the ever-popular speech, reported in the newspapers every day, which argues with impressive logic that humanity faces a crisis and that nuclear suicide is not, after all, desirable or likely to promote human welfare.

No meeting is complete without Man's Dilemma but I am bound to say it gets rather tired and shopworn when you hear it wherever two or more men are gathered together: What it needs is a new diction, a dash of originality, a little face-lifting, available for three dollars.

NO one should be ashamed to take advantage of this opportunity since the best speeches nowadays are seldom written by the orators who deliver them. They are too busy and leave those manual chores to the hired man.

It has thus become quite impossible to distinguish the living person on the platform from the ghost behind the scenes. The actor uttering the lines and the playwright who writes them are merged in perfect synthesis. That is why oratory has so greatly improved in our time—it is mainly the work of experts.

Until recently, however, the casual part-time speaker could hardly afford the services of a highly-paid ghost and usually attempted to write his own speech, a hard job and a great mistake, as the results usually prove.

WHEN speeches for every conceivable occasion—formal or informal, happy or tragic, partisan or non-partisan, Conservative or Liberal, witty or ponderous, optimistic or pessimistic, viewing with alarm or pointing with pride, the entire gamut of human affairs—are available at less than the price of a bottle of whisky, there can be no excuse for a dull speech.

Undoubtedly there is more stimulation in that book than in any bottle and since everybody is likely to make a speech at the drop of a hat, or even without it, no household should lack this essential equipment.

It is sometimes said, in gibe, that the Scots are prepared to die for their country but not to live in it. It would be truer to say that they get their roots down quicker into the soil of a new country than any other people. ## As Our Readers See It

Against Protocol

The citizens of Victoria who wanted the Centennial Flag of B.C. flown on top of the other two flags were quite correct and within their provincial rights.

It should have been flown above the other two flags, the Red Ensign coming second down.

It was a treat to know that we actually have citizens who love their British Columbia and Canada and fight for their rights.

May I add, also, that our first native born Canadian governor-general should have been the only one to attend to all functions for our 100-year B.C. birthday. A. B. MARSHALL, 923 Collinson Street.

Knew Him When

Re article in your issue of Saturday, June 28, entitled "Dark Passions Lurk Among the Denizens of Cadboro Bay," by Tony Emery, I note that he refers to one Joshua Slocum and his sloop the Spray.

Well, in 1898, I sat next to Capt. Slocum at meals. He was staying at the Masonic Hotel in Johannesburg, S.A., where I was also staying. He was on his way round the world in his small sloop the Spray and at the time lecturing in Johannesburg.

I remember I asked him to take me with him round the world and he told me that he always travelled alone. I also asked him how he managed at night, sleeping, and he said that he set the tiller. If the slightest thing went wrong, he would wake instinctively.

It was quite like old times reading about him. As regards Capt. Voss, I never heard of him.

'War Against Unions'

A pamphlet entitled "War Against the Unions: What's It All About?" seems deserving of some comment.

The "Top Brass" of the unions in the U.S.A. are engaged in a war against automation, similar to that of the stagecoach against railways, a war which cannot win. Their method is a continual increase in wages, which results in increased automation and an increase in unemployment which they admit is already at a very high level. They actually demand, as in the case of the CPR, that men shall be employed without duties to perform.

The "Top Brass" are also active in Canadian unions which are subject to high pressure and propaganda. Wages are at a level which is causing stagnation in the nation's business and deterioration in all phases of the economy, and the quality of all that we buy has fallen to a brutal degree in the effort to meet the cost of production. Many firms have been forced into bankruptcy. A union leader in Vancouver, when questioned about this, said that they should go out of business if they could not pay the wages.

I do see a young man downtown around Fort Street now and then who does have the good sense to dress for the weather and in real dressy shorts at that—I must stop him sometime and ask him where he bought his flannel shorts.

Royal Marines Band from England will be in attendance at Ceremonial Divisions in HMCS Naden, Friday, commencing at 3:30 p.m.

But the latest news is that it will come to Victoria. Tentative booking has been arranged by the arrival at the buildings of Princess Margaret July 14.

New Pat Bay Terminal To Be Built Next Year

Ottawa Announcement Makes No Mention Of Runways Extension

Expansion of facilities at Patricia Bay airport was announced in Ottawa today by Transport Minister George Hees.

Contract for construction of a new air terminal will be let next winter or in early spring.

The announcement drew general approval here, but also disappointment that no mention was made by the minister concerning long-awaited runway lengthening.

Mayor Percy Scurr said "concerning work next spring . . . I don't like that. If work got underway in the winter it would help unemployment during the period.

"The runways were supposed to have been lengthened this summer, and this ought to be done now."

He said they needed "strengthening and lengthening," to take modern high speed jet aircraft. Present length of runways is 5,000 feet, and extensions to 7,500 feet had been hoped for.

BIGGER PLANES

Chamber of commerce president Hugh Stephen said "although we welcome the news and are pleased about it, we were given to understand work would start soon on runways. Until this is done, we can't expect to get bigger planes into Pat Bay."

He added, "I'm disappointed work isn't scheduled to start earlier."

President-elect of the chamber, Conway Parrott, said he was "delighted" with the news.

Gordon Whiting, chairman of the chamber's harbor and transportation group, said it was "gratifying" to hear the department of transport intended to get started on the project, but said he would have liked to hear an announcement concerning extension of runways at the same time.

DECISION SOON

"I hope a decision is made in the near future."

The chamber believes that Victoria provides the "first look" at Canada for thousands of American tourists and thus is deserving of all possible consideration.

Then have been no estimates forwarded on the cost of the new terminal.

In making the announcement, Mr. Hees said as money was made available his department was doing its best to keep up with rapid developments in aviation by providing new terminal facilities at key airports.

He said requests put before the treasury board by the federal transport department "staggered" that board.

He was remanded to July 9 for sentence.

MORE CHARGES

Other charges under the Motor Vehicles Act and Game Act are pending, police said.

Police said they were acting in accordance with a general investigation for Prosser and came upon a hide-out shack which he had built near Mile 65.

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

When divorced remarries:

If a divorced remarries, does she use her maiden name or her former marriage name as her middle name, if she had no permission at the time of the divorce to resume her maiden name and if she never had a middle name as a girl? For example: Mary Smith becomes Mrs. Louise Davis. John Jones when married, then Mrs. Mary Smith Jones after her divorce. By marrying James Proctor, does she become Mrs. Mary Proctor, Mrs. Mary Smith Proctor or Mrs. Mary Jones Proctor?

Louise Davis answers:

When divorced, Mrs. Mary Smith Jones is married to James Proctor, and her former husband's name is wiped out forever from her name and from her signature. Her name, therefore, is Mrs. James Proctor. Her signature, however (which is not to be confused with the name) can be Mary Proctor, Mary Smith Proctor or Mary S. Proctor.

When signing any of these three to a letter where name and signature need clarifying, she identifies her name underneath the signature by writing in parentheses "(Mrs. James)" or "(Mrs. James Proctor)." That lets the answer know her name so that the envelope can be addressed to Mrs. James Proctor.

By JOSEPHINE LOWMANFor Proper Reducing
You Must Exercise

The part exercise plays in reducing is becoming more and more clarified. We always have known that one cannot shed overweight by exercise alone because it is impossible to exercise enough. Calories must also be counted.

However, there may be other factors. I myself often have noticed that I gain when I am at home and sit at a typewriter a lot of each day. I lose without effort when I am on a trip and dash about from one interview to another. There is no doubt that I eat much more rich food when on these trips than I do when I am at home.

An interesting experiment was tried at New York Hospital. Pedometers were attached to the upper thighs of 15 over-weight women, patients at the general medical clinic. Pedometers also were attached to an equal number of women who were the correct weight and also similar in age and occupation.

It was found that the over-weight women walked a little more than 14 miles a week while the non-over-weights walked more than 34 miles a week. This probably presents a vicious circle—less activity leads to more weight and more weight leads to less physical activity.

Madame Renee Archibald complimented the students, Roderick Andrews, Cynthia Milton, John Green, Claudia Cole, Lynn Chapman, Julian Johansson, Douglas Gilmour and Sherry Fahey, on their progress.

Mrs. F. Fahey presided at the urns when refreshments were served following the program.

TODAY'S RECIPE*GARLIC BREAD

Wonderful with salads or practically anything and so easy to prepare! Buy a loaf of French bread and cut into one-inch slices almost through to the bottom crust.

Mix softened butter with generous amount of chopped parsley and a bit of garlic that has been mashed with a steel-tined fork into salt, so no little bits of garlic are left (you may also use a garlic crusher).

Spread this savory butter mixture between each slice, brushing any left over top. Wrap whole in aluminum foil and place in hot oven (400° F.) for 15 to 20 minutes. Serve right in the foil, so it will keep hot until each crunchy piece is eaten.

Publicity posters were arranged by Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Sampson.

Assisting with refreshments were Mrs. J. F. Preston, Mrs. I. Ogston, Mrs. J. Bamforth, Mrs. A. S. Parkes, Mrs. D. C. S. Abiss, Mrs. H. S. Beckton, Mrs. J. M. Hodson, Mrs. J. C. Mac Donald, Mrs. J. B. POST-WAR BOOM

A new boom started after the war—with the U.S. the biggest market, but the Americans started raising silver fox too, and with their characteristic energy they raised so many that by 1935 most any stenographer with a steady job could buy a silver fox jacket on the installment plan.

The market dwindled and almost vanished. By the middle of the Second World War a rancher couldn't sell a silver fox pelt for enough to pay for the feed the fox had eaten. There still are silver fox breeding associations in both Canada and the United States and both scan the fashion and trade papers eagerly to see how well the new silver fox boar or stole is going to catch on.

Plans are being completed for St. Andrew's Cathedral annual summer fete to be held on July 5 commencing at 2 p.m. There will be a strawberry tea, home-cooking stalls, and games. In the evening games will be enjoyed and coffee and doughnuts served.

Silver Fox'
May Stage
Comeback

NEW YORK (UPI)—Evening strollers on Fifth Avenue are turning to stare these days at women wearing long, exaggerated stoles of silver fox fur.

The stoles are as long as the famous feather boas of the Edwardian era. They are still not numerous but they are catching on with the fashion conscious—and for Canada that could mean something important.

Few people have any hope that the day will ever return when a single silver fox pelt is worth $2,000, but furs move in fashion cycles, and the silver fox, like red and blue fox, has been in eclipse now for 20 years not only in the United States but in Britain and Europe and even in his homeland, Canada.

SALES DOUBLED

But sales of all kinds of fox furs have doubled on the New York market in the last two years with the Arctic white fox—also from Canada—leading the parade.

Momentarily that isn't anything to get excited about because fox furs had fallen by the early 1950s almost to the bottom of the list in popularity. Far too many people, both in Canada and the United States, remember the huge investments lost in the collapses of the silver fox market in the 1920s and 1930s.

Actually the story of the silver fox is as remarkable in its way as the bizarre tulip speculation that drove Holland to the dizzy verge of bankruptcy back in the 17th century.

The silver fox boom began on Canada's Prince Edward Island in 1883. The black fox with the silver hairs was already a prized quarry of trappers. But in that year, Charles Dalton of Tignish, P.E.I., succeeded in getting a pair of silver foxes to produce two litters in captivity. A multi-million-dollar industry that paid fantastic dividends of up to 900 per cent on the speculative shares developed over the next 20 years.

The prices of breeding pairs reached a record of $32,500 by 1910. Nobody knows how many fortunes were made in Prince Edward Island silver fox ranching before the First World War. The first boom collapsed as the Kaiser's troops swept across Belgium in 1914 because the London market was the big one then.
